- 3.5. Protected Disclosures can relate to wrongdoing that may not relate to a particular contravention of law, for example⁷:

- 3.6. Protection will also be provided where you disclose information to your legal practitioner for the purpose of obtaining legal advice or legal representation in relation to the operation of the Whistle-blower Protections⁸. Protection is still available where the legal practitioner concludes that the disclosure does not relate to a disclosable matter⁹.
- 3.7. Unless the One Investment Group determines that the issue disclosed would have significant implications for OIG, whistle-blower protection is not available in relation to personal work-related grievances¹⁰ including:
- (a) an interpersonal conflict between the discloser and another employee;
 - (b) a decision relating to the engagement, transfer or promotion of the discloser;

blowers protections under the Corporations Act¹².

- 3.9. If you make a Protected Disclosure, you will not be subject to any civil, criminal or administrative liability or contractual right or remedy for making that disclosure and the information disclosed is not admissible against you in criminal or civil penalty proceedings¹³. You will still qualify for protection even if your disclosure turns out to be incorrect¹⁴. You will not, however, be considered to have made a “Protected Disclosure” where you knowingly provide false information¹⁵.
- 3.10. Examples of the types of information that might be considered as a Protected Disclosure include those set out in Section 3.4 above¹⁶:
- (a) A breach of a material aspect of OIG’ Risk Management Framework (including the relevant Compliance Management System) or malfeasance of any kind including fraud, negligence or wilful default by a member of OIG’s staff; disclosure. To lodge a report with ASIC, visit their website and follow the whistle-blower/reporting misconduct links.

Internal Protected Disclosures

- 4.4. Where the disclosure is made to any OIG Eligible Recipient, the disclosure may be made orally or in writing. Where the disclosure is made orally, the Eligible Recipient should take notes of the discussion and provide the Eligible Whistle-blower with a copy of the notes for them to confirm their accuracy.
- 4.5. OIG's Eligible Recipients can be contacted to make a disclosure anonymously/confidentially, securely and outside of business hours using any of the following methods²¹:
- (a) in person (you can't remain anonymous if you use this method);
 - (b) by mailing or leaving at OIG's head office a sealed envelope marked "Private and Confidential" addressed to the relevant Eligible Recipient;
 - (c) by telephone (use the internal directory or details contained on OIG's website); or
 - (d) by email (using OIG's internal directory).
- 4.6. The written record of the Protected Disclosure should be as detailed as possible for example it should include:
- (a) the names of any One Investment Group staff involved in the matter;
 - (b) dates and times of when the questionable conduct was observed (if relevant);
 - (c) specific details of any questionable transactions and the parties involved;
 - (d) whether there were any witnesses to the questionable conduct; and
 - (e) copies of or the location of any documents evidencing the information relevant to the Protected Disclosure.
- 4.7. An Eligible Whistle-blower may make a Protected Disclosure to an Eligible Recipient anonymously²². You can choose to remain anonymous while making the disclosure, over the course of the investigation and after the investigation is finalised²³. OIG will protect anonymity through²⁴:
- (a) not storing any information in relation to the Protected Disclosure on a drive or in a folder that is accessible to people that are not Eligible Recipients; and
 - (b) avoiding as far as possible, providing people with information sufficient to identify the Eligible Whistle-blower as the source of the Protected Disclosure.
- 4.8. Making an anonymous disclosure may limit the effectiveness of an investigation as the investigator will not be able to ask questions of the discloser²⁵. OIG considers the process is enhanced where Eligible Whistle-blowers maintain ongoing two-way communication with OIG so that the relevant Eligible Recipient can ask follow-up questions or provide feedback²⁶.

External Protected Disclosures

- 4.9. While OIG expects that all staff will first bring their concerns to an OIG Eligible Recipient, OIG recognises that in some limited situations, wrongdoing may be of such gravity and urgency that disclosure to the media or a parliamentarian is justified. Public interest and emergency disclosures to a member of parliament or a professional journalist (but not a social media commentator, blogger) will qualify as a Protected Disclosure where:
- (a) a Protected Disclosure has already been made to a regulatory body (such as ASIC, APRA or another Commonwealth body prescribed by regulation), but the Eligible Whistle-blower has no reasonable grounds to believe that any action is being taken to address the conduct or state of affairs in question;
 - (b) in the case of a public interest disclosure, at least 90 days must have passed since the previous disclosure to ASIC (or APRA)²⁷
 - (c) the Eligible Whistle-blower has reasonable grounds to believe that it would be in the public interest for a further disclosure to be made, or alternatively, that the disclosure concerns a 'substantial and imminent danger' to the health or safety of a person or to the natural environment; and
 - (d) before making the External Disclosure, the Eligible Whistle-blower first gives the regulatory body written notice that includes sufficient information to identify the previous disclosure and states the Eligible Whistle-blower's intention to make an External Disclosure.
- 4.10. In relation to disclosure concerning a 'substantial or imminent danger' to the health or safety of a person or to the natural environment, the extent of the information disclosure should be no greater than is necessary to inform the journalist or parliamentarian of the substantial and imminent danger.
- 4.11. It is important to understand the criteria for making a public interest or emergency disclosure. You should obtain independent legal advice before making a public interest or emergency disclosure as the consequences of an Eligible Whistle-blower making a non-protected External Disclosure can be significant and detrimental for OIG and/or the Eligible Whistle-blower themselves. OIG strongly encourages any potential Eligible Whistle-blowers to first talk to only to their legal adviser about the protections and process applicable under the Whistle-blower Protections before making an External Disclosure.

5. How will OIG investigate a Protected Disclosure?²⁸

- 5.1. Where the Eligible Recipient is a member of OIG, they will assess within 4 business days whether the disclosure:
- (a) is a Protected Disclosure; and

²⁶ RG 270.84

²⁷ RG 270.77

²⁸ RG 270.111

- (b) requires a formal, in-depth investigation.
- 5.2. The OIG Eligible Recipient will either investigate the matter themselves or arrange for the matter to be investigated by engaging either an internal or external investigator.
- 5.3. An investigator appointed by OIG will gather all available information using any of the following methods:
- (a) review any available information (including information provided);
 - (b) interview any relevant person;
 - (c) engage an external adviser (e.g. lawyer or accountant).
- 5.4. The objectives of the investigation are to:
- (a) collate information relating to the Eligible Disclosure;
 - (b) consider the information collected; and
 - (c) provide the Board or the Compliance Committee (as applicable²⁹) a written report on the investigator's findings in relation to the Eligible Disclosures and the investigator's recommended course of action³⁰.
- 5.5. The initial investigation for completing the objectives as stated above should be completed in 10 business days. Any further investigation or action should be conducted within a reasonably prompt timeframe as necessary.
- 5.6. In conducting their investigation, the investigator must:
- (a) observe the rules of "natural justice" including, for example, providing a fair opportunity to respond to any person against whom an allegation is made as part of the Eligible Disclosure (unless there is a compelling reason not to, such as physical danger to any person);
 - (b) conduct the investigation without bias; and
 - (c) maintain confidential written records of their investigation (the method for documenting and reporting the findings will depend on the nature of the disclosure).
- 5.7. In conducting the investigation, the investigator must keep relevant Eligible Whistle-blowers appropriately³¹ informed of the progress of their investigation and when the investigation has been completed. The outcome of the investigation will only be disclosed to the Eligible Whistle-blower at OIG's discretion. At the end of the investigation, the investigator must provide to the Eligible Whistle-blower a written report on their findings which may be the full report provided to the Board or a summary of it³². The frequency and timeframe of contact with the Eligible Whistle-blower may vary depending on the nature of the disclosure. The ²⁹ It may be appropriate for the investigator to report to the Compliance Committee where Eligible Disclosure relates to an act or omission of the Board or any Director on the Board.

³⁰ RG 270.123

³¹ Only those Eligible Whistle-blowers who have identified themselves as part of the Eligible Disclosure are able to be updated. There may be limits to the information that can be shared for example duties of confidentiality owed to others and questions of legal privilege.

information provided is subject to:

- (a) any circumstances where it may not be appropriate to provide details of the outcome to the Eligible Whistle-Blower, including observing the privacy of others involved in the investigation); and
- (b) whether the Eligible Whistle-blower can be contacted, including through anonymous channels.

5.8. OIG has a legal obligation to protect the confidentiality of an Eligible Whistle-blower³³. The investigator must not disclose the identity of the Eligible Whistle-blower but may disclose information relating to the disclosure where it is reasonably necessary to their investigation and they take reasonable steps to reduce the risk that the Eligible Whistle-blower will be identified by the information disclosed³⁴. OIG will protect the confidentiality of an Eligible Whistle-Blower's identity through but not limited to:

- (a) the secure storage of physical documents containing information pertaining to the Protected Disclosure;
- (b) the storage of electronic documents containing information pertaining to the Protected Disclosure on the investigator's desktop, and not on the OIG Network;
- (c) exclusive access to the Eligible Recipient and investigator's emails;
- (d) where possible, all personal information or reference to the Eligible Whistle-blower witnessing an event will be redacted;
- (e) where possible, the Eligible Whistle-blower will be contacted to help identify certain aspects of their disclosure that could inadvertently identify them;
- (f) disclosures will be handled and investigated by qualified staff;
- (g) access to all information relating to a disclosure will be limited to those directly involved in managing and investigating the disclosure; and
- (h) only a restricted number of people who are directly involved in handling and investigating a disclosure will be made aware of a Eligible Whistle-blower's identity (subject to the Eligible Whistle-blower's consent) or information that is likely to lead to the identification of the Eligible Whistle-blower.

5.9. The investigator may disclose information to obtain legal advice or representation in relation to the operation of the Whistle-blower Protections including whether the investigator may obtain legal advice on the subject matter of the disclosure (for example in the case of serious misconduct or reports regarding compliance and regulatory breaches).

5.10. All OIG Staff must cooperate with the investigation and keep confidential both the fact they have participated in the investigation and the subject matter discussed with them during the investigation. Any OIG staff member who reveals the existence of an investigation or any information in relation to the investigation may be subject to disciplinary action.

5.11. It is illegal for any person to identify an Eligible Whistle-blower, or disclose information that is likely to lead to the identification of the Eligible Whistle-blower unless it is:

³³ RG 270.91

³⁴ RG 270.93 & RG 270.118

- (a) to ASIC, APRA, or a member of the Australian Federal Police;
- (b) to a legal practitioner (for the purposes of obtaining legal advice);
- (c) to a person or body prescribed by regulations; or
- (d) with the consent of the Eligible Whistle-blower³⁵.

5.12. If an Eligible Whistle-blower considers the duty of confidence owed to them has been breached they may lodge a complaint with their choice of³⁶:

- (a) OIG's Director, Legal, Risk & Compliance;
- (b) any director of an OIG Licensee; or
- (c) any member of the Compliance Committee.

6. How will OIG ensure fair treatment of employees?

6.1. OIG strives to ensure the fair treatment of all its employees including by³⁷:

- (a) conducting any investigation in the manner described above;
- (b) ensuring the confidentiality of the Eligible Whistle-blower where disclosure is not required or authorised by law³⁸;
- (c) considering whether it is appropriate to offer the Eligible Whistle-blower paid leave during the investigation;
- (d) monitoring the behaviour of any OIG staff who may be associated with the Eligible Disclosure and managing any adverse behaviour identified; and
- (e) subject to Section 6.2, ensuring that no employee who is an Eligible Whistle-blower is subject to any detrimental acts or omissions³⁹ resulting from the Eligible Disclosure including:

 - (ii) harm or injury of an employee in their employment including psychological harm;
 - (iii) disadvantageous alteration of an employee's position or duties; with the procedures set out in OIG's Employee Handbook⁴¹.

- 6.3. OIG has implemented measures and mechanisms for protecting Eligible Whistle-blowers from detrimental acts or omissions including:
- (a) processes for ensuring that management are aware of their responsibilities to maintain the confidentiality of a disclosure, address the risks of isolation or harassment, manage conflicts and ensure fairness when managing the performance of, or taking other management action relating to a discloser;
 - (b) processes for assessing the risk of detriment against a discloser and other persons;
 - (c) strategies to help a discloser minimise and manage stress, time or performance impacts, or other challenges resulting from the disclosure or its investigation; and
 - (d) interventions for protecting a discloser if detriment has already occurred.
- 6.4. If an employee-Eligible Whistle-blower has been involved in the matters that are the subject of an Eligible Disclosure, they may be subject to disciplinary action in respect of their role. Although the act of making an Eligible Disclosure cannot protect an Eligible Whistle-blower from disciplinary or remedial action where they have been involved in the matters that are the subject of the Eligible Disclosure, it may be taken into account and may mitigate any action that may lawfully be taken against the employee-Eligible Whistle-blower⁴².
- 6.5. An Eligible Whistle-blower can seek compensation and other remedies through the courts if
- (a) they suffer loss, damage or injury due to a disclosure; and
 - (b) OIG has failed to take reasonable precautions and exercise due diligence to prevent the detrimental conduct⁴³.
